

KINX RESOURCES – The Hanky Code

It is believed that the hanky code was developed in San Francisco during the gold rush of the mid-1900's. as there were too few women in the town at the time, men would dance with each other (and more, no doubt) on Saturday nights. A handkerchief tied around either arm would signify whether the man wanted to lead (left) or be lead (right)

The practice was revived in the mid-1970's in San Francisco and extended to signify different sexual interests by means of colour. The practice seems to have died out a little, though those into fisting tend to continue this useful habit more than others.

Colours can be used in several ways beyond a hanky in the back pocket - striped armbands are popular, as well as piping or stripes in jeans and chaps, stripes on jockstraps look great too.

The list has been added to over the years with some rather tongue-in-cheek colours and patterns which only served to confuse things. Herewith a back-to-basics list:

Colour	Left	Right
Black	SM Top	SM bottom
Yellow	Watersports Top	Watersports bottom
Red	Fister	Fistee
Navy Blue	Fucker	Fuckee
Grey	Bondage Top	Bondage bottom
Green	Daddy	Boy
Light Blue	Wants to be sucked	Wants to suck cock
Brown	Scat Top	Scat bottom
Orange	Anything, now	Nothing, just cruising
Purple	Piercing Top	Piercing bottom
White	Wants to be jerked off	Wants to jerk off someone
