

LEATHER CARE

We only use the highest quality selected cowhide for our garments and accessories. finding this is sometimes no mean feat in South Africa, but we remain committed to maintaining the highest levels of quality.

Chrome tanned nappa in appropriate weights are used for all clothing and lining of bondage gear. Full vegetable tanned hides are used for the base of all bondage gear.

Leather is a natural material and therefore may have small marks and scratches. This part of the character of the material and proof that it is genuine aniline dyed hide - and not a coated product like that used on kids' school shoes.

Leather will last a lifetime if properly cared for:

Regular cleaning maintains the shape and texture of your leather, as well as making it look good

Do not use strong detergents or washing powder to clean your leather. Plain warm water is best. Use a little baby shampoo or a drop of dishwashing liquid to tackle difficult stains. We use "saddle soap" - obtainable from tack shops (saddleries) and some hardware stores

Use a suitable leather conditioner after cleaning. You should be able to find "Lexol" or "Wynn's Leather Creme" at any supermarket. We use "Neatsfoot Oil" (also from tack shops etc.) to treat all items after assembly
